What do we mean by "franchise"?

A franchise is a small business that is associated with a larger brand. The benefits of this business model is that the franchisee (the person who buys the franchise) is able to work for themselves, while tapping into the reputation and support network of an established business.

WHAT ARE THE START UP COSTS

Initial investment

The standard buy in cost of a Hire-A-Hubby franchise is $43,000 +GST and as part of this initial investment, you'll receive a comprehensive equipment pack, that provides all the business tools you'll need - from training, uniforms, vehicle signage and safety equipment, to marketing collateral, accounting tools and client management software. With this collection of essentials, you'll be confident and prepared to get your business up and running.

Remember that you will need to buy a suitable vehicle for your business. We do ask that you drive a serviceable, black coloured van or ute no older than 5 years in age that will meet the needs of your business.

Extra capital

It's sensible to allow up to 6 months of working capital up-front, which will provide a buffer for fluctuating income levels, and cover any unexpected start-up costs.

What about financing?

Our alliance partner, ANZ Bank, may be able to provide an unsecured business loan of up to 50% of the cost of your franchise (with the option of further lending if you have equity in your home).

Are there any ongoing fees?

Your Royalty and Brand Levy are contributions towards the running costs for your area and are designed to benefit you.

In addition, every franchisee contributes to the technology fund administered by the national support office. There are no hidden extra fees.

HOW MUCH CAN I MAKE

As much as you like! The opportunities get as big as you want them to be. You can design your business to be anything from an income stream for you and your family, to a business empire that employs an entire workforce. There are no limits.

How do I get customers and grow my business?

You can reach your desired income by using our proven systems, and implementing practical learnings from our training programme (outlined below). When you start your business you will have in place a business plan that will enable you to grow your business, and a dedicated Business Advisor who will guide you along the journey during regular one-on-one reviews.
